THE

THIS Work contains the original Poetical Writings of 114 different Authors, together with the most approved Translations of the Classical Greek and Latin Poets.—To the Works of each Author is prefixed a Biographical and Critical Preface, by ROBERT ANDERSON, M. D. who has with great care corrected the inaccuracies of former Biographers, and collected many facts relative to the Life and Writings of the Authors, which have never before been concentrated.

The Poetical Works of every Author inserted in the London Edition 1790, are included in this. Besides the four first Volumes, which are composed of twenty Authors who wrote prior to the period at which the London Edition commences, the Works of twenty-nine different Writers are included in the later Volumes, not given in the Edition of the English Poets 1790; and even to the Works formerly brought forward, many pieces have been collected and added by the present Editor, which were omitted in former Collections. The original Poetry has been separated from the Poetical Translations of each Author; and the XIIIth, which is a Supplementary Volume, is composed entirely of Poetical Translations, which have not been given in any former publication of this kind. It is here unnecessary to specify the particular Authors, whose Works have been now for the first time included in a Collection of Classical English Poetry, as a List of the Authors is prefixed, and the merits of many of the Writers now for the first time introduced, are sufficiently known and acknowledged.

From the Works of the Authors contained, in the XIth Volume, it was intended only to have given Selections. As the Editor proceeded, however, he was not only induced to include all the poems of each Author found in any one Edition of his Works, but to glean from different Editions, and from the Periodical Publications, all that has been ascribed to each. The Collection of the Poetical Works of every Author is thus rendered complete. But this, with the length of the Biographical Prefaces, has swelled the XIth at least one half beyond the average thickness of the other Volumes;—on which account, it has become necessary to fix the price of this Volume at 16s. in Boards.

The superior advantages of this Collection will readily occur. While the Works of above double the number of Authors contained in any former collection, are included in it, it is offered at little more than half the price of any of the former Editions. It might, however, be rendered yet more perfect, by the addition of two more Volumes, the one of Translations, the other of Fugitive Pieces; which it is the intention of the Proprietors forthwith to bring forward; and it will be in the option of Purchasers to add them to their Collection, which would thus be rendered nearly a complete Poetical Library.

As the Proprietors have prevailed upon Dr. ANDERSON to revise and enlarge the Accounts of the Authors, for separate publication, any information for this purpose will be thankfully received.

In the Press, and will be published in January next, an elegant Edition of BROTIER'S TACITUS, in 4 vols, 4to, on fine Wove Post, Hot-Pressed;—also a neat Edition of the same Book in 4 vols, Royal Octavo; in which Editions will be incorporated the Annotations of Brotier, given both in the 4to and 12mo Paris Editions. The utmost possible attention will be paid to the Correctness both of the Text and of the Notes.

November 1795.
